

Generation Z siblings, Chase (lead guitar) and sisters, Max (lead and background vocals), Blake (lead vocals and drums), and Kit Mitchell (lead vocals, background vocals, keys and bass guitar), make up the L.A. band, We Don't Ride Llamas (WDRL). Avid readers, self-professed nerds, lovers of sci-fi, anime, fashion, and nearly every musical genre from punk to funk, the members of WDRL cannot resist any good story well told, especially one set to an engaging melody. Having coined the term “shillelagh music” to describe the variety of musical genres they embrace, WDRL performs original songs they've written themselves as well as covers of some of their favorite musicians, ranging from Icelandic born Of Monsters and Men to legendary American greats, Nirvana. The skilled, energetic quartet finds a great deal of their inspiration from the careers and projects of seasoned performers Kali Uchis, Unknown Mortal Orchestra, Janelle Monae, and Lenny Kravitz, all of with whom they hope to one day go on tour.
